Dr. Rani Thomas, M.B.B.S, M.D, Gynecologist, Carmel Hospital, Aluva, initiated the panel discussion. The event featured a panel of guest speakers, including transgender activists, care taker, college staff and student representative who shared their knowledge and experiences. Panel discussions covered topics such as transgender rights, healthcare access, mental health support etc. They conveyed the issues that arose empathy in the mind of the listeners. It helped all to understand the concept in a wider term such as the atrocities the marginalized goes through in their daily life and in society. It also enhanced us to comprehend that the basic necessities need for any human being is being neglected to the marginalized. It was a heated discussion among the dignitaries where, each point was a bolt shot against the society that comprised of all the people.

Attendees had the opportunity to share their personal stories. This open sharing of experiences allowed participants to connect on a deeper level. They also shared their experiences of coming out, transitioning, and the importance of acceptance. This session helped each to express their pain in an open and unjudgmental space. Everyone was welcoming to articulate their agony that helped them to console and uplift themselves to an extent.

The event created a safe and inclusive environment where transgender could share their experiences, challenges, and successes.

The programme highlighted the resilience and strength of transgender individuals and the importance of continued efforts to raise awareness, provide support, and advocate for transgender rights. The programme ended at 3.00 .p.m.
